1. I want to thank you for permitting [] [] to appear at Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies on 22 June and to make a joint presentation on the state of the Cuban economy today. Their performances were thoroughly professional and extremely well received by a prestigious group of about 20 persons from throughout government and representing many interests in the private sector. One of the most distinguished scholars present, a noted expert on Cuban affairs, praised [] effusively for their objective and candid presentation.

2. Participation in meetings such as this with experts from outside of the Agency provides many benefits, and in this case the most outstanding perhaps was that two of our more distinguished analysts were able to demonstrate their skills and their expertise so splendidly before an expert audience.
